

Mid-quarter questionnaire

Thursday, February 10, 2011

I enjoy teaching this course, and I hope you enjoy this course, too.

Let us remember that your learning is the most important thing in this course. Both I and you are responsible to optimize our efforts to make that happen the best way. I always think about the money's worth that you should be getting from your courses.

So, if you have any responses to the following questions, and if you let me know them, that would help my teaching, which means your learning.

You can take this questionnaire home and type your answers on a separate piece of paper, which you can then put in my mailbox. Or, you can let me know your answers in any other way (email?), if you are not concerned about the anonymity. Either way, your answers are strictly for my information only, and won't have any effect on your academic evaluation.

So, please feel free to answer any number of these questions, as you see fit. You can be as brief as you like to be, or as wordy as you feel like.

1. What kind of activities should we do more of, in order to enhance your learning?
2. What kind of activities should we do less of, in order to enhance your learning?
3. Is the level of homework/lecture/quiz appropriate for you?
4. Are you learning enough?
5. Is there anything that you would recommend in terms of my lecturing style?
6. Is there anything that you would recommend in terms of homework, web site, email correspondence, etc.?
7. Is there anything that you would absolutely want to learn in this class, which you are worried we will not cover?
8. Would an additional office hour help you? It can be set up on Monday or Friday. If yes, tell me when you are available on those days.
9. Feel free to add any comments.
